Gumiyuje?

It has been some time since we have given you any messages from the Office of the Chairman and Council. We are in full swing with all the issues to be dealt with. We are also looking at all the accomplishments of the tribal membership with and outside the community of Peach Springs. We want to acknowledge that you mean a great deal to us, when you have your plans and successes for you and your families, your representations reflect our victories to the Hualapai Nation! Thank you for your great job—people.

Back to school:
To our youth: Pre-school; Head Start; Elementary; Jr High/High school and our students in College; of the Hualapai; it is that time of the season for you to get your mind in gear, your journey through the next nine/ten months and set for new lessons to be learned. You have gifts and talent that you just never knew. You have a great treasure inside you. Don’t feel that you are not smart enough to be where you are. You must not let people tell you “what you can become.” You have great skills, intentions, and aspirations for your future; and your dreams are just a breath away. Don’t let someone determine your destiny. Know who you are and know who you are not. You are special, you are unique. There is no one like you in this universe. You cannot be someone else, as well. You are a masterpiece!

You must believe in believing you are an A student, you are smart, you are full of wisdom, and willing to learn. Don’t let anyone hold you back to your education and what you deserve— a great education. As long as you believe in this you will accomplish a lot more than you really know. You are what you believe. Keep your mind open and your dreams alive!!! You are blessed!

Determinations of our People:
We have had many blessings to our people. We had our first GED graduation ceremonies this summer with 13 graduates. They worked very hard to get to this time in their lives and now... some are continuing to the next level—College! Congratulations to all the graduates from the Council and the People.

The fourth (3rd) of July was again an outstanding feature of the departments working for the community. We want to give a big thank you to our Police, EMS, Fire Department, and Animal Control for the “Air Show” and traffic control.

We, the Tribal Council, have started to complete our negotiations with the other tribes on our Gaming compacts. It has been over two and one-half to three years since this was started. We are now working on the solutions to meet with the AZ State and Governor.
Our Departments:
We want to thank you for your patience with our different departments that deal with emergencies on a daily basis. They are very busy during this time of year with issues that seem to be urgent to the people reporting, and other things seem to be more urgent than others. We are working to serve all calls and delivering our best to you. It is hard, but meaningful to the overall safety of the community.

The clothing allowance is another component that we need to work on as a community. Get your student(s) receipts in as soon as possible, so that you are all ready for the next school year.

Just as important, all receipts for other things, such as medical, furniture, and etc. are all needed as soon as possible.

Housing is working hard to get everyone in compliance. We need to get better in our payments, our yards, our agreements and keeping a roof over our heads. The HUD regulations will not give us more homes without our people making better efforts to get us to be a great community.

The Great Spirit created Man and Woman in his own image. In doing so, both were created as equals. Both depending on each other in order to survive. Great respect was shown for each other; in doing so, happiness and contentment was achieved then, as it should be now.

The connecting of the Hair makes them one person; for happiness or contentment cannot be achieved without each other.

The Canyons are represented by the purples in the middle ground, where the people were created. These canyons are Sacred, and should be so treated at all times.

The Reservation is pictured to represent the land that is ours, treat it well.

The Reservation is our heritage and the heritage of our children yet unborn. Be good to our land and it will continue to be good to us.

The Sun is the symbol of life. Without it nothing is possible - plants don’t grow - there will be no life - nothing. The Sun also represents the dawn of the Hualapai people. Through hard work, determination and education, everything is possible and we are assured bigger and brighter days ahead.

The Tracks in the middle represent the coyote and other animals which were here before us.

The Green around the symbol are pine trees, representing our name Hualapai - PEOPLE OF THE TALL PINES.

Back-to-school checklist: 5 tips to get in the groove

It's been a great summer, but it's time to get everyone back in the groove of classes, sports practice — and getting up early again. Here are some tips to help your kids make a healthy transition back to school.

1. Get bedtimes on track, and tidy up the sleep hygiene.
   In the summer, when it's light after 10 p.m., it's easy for bedtimes to slip. But with early school wake-up calls coming, it's key for children and teens to get to bed so they get enough quality sleep. Pediatricians recommend that children age 6 to 12 get 9 to 12 hours of sleep a night, and that teens get 8 to 10 hours a night.
   Here are some tips to help children and teens get the sleep they need when they return to school.

   • Power off the devices. "Good sleep hygiene means all devices should be turned off an hour before bedtime," says Andrea Hoopes, MD, a Kaiser Permanente Washington pediatrician. "This gives their brains time to unplug from the stimulation and the light from phones and computers." Reading a book or magazine — the old-school kind — can help kids relax right before bedtime.

   • Consider darkening shades. The clock says it's bedtime, but it's still light out. That can interfere with a child's sleep. Darkening shades can block out distracting light and help your child drift off more easily.

   • Ease off caffeine. Your child or teen should stop drinking anything with caffeine, including sodas and energy drinks, after noon. That way, by bedtime, the stimulant will be out of their system.

2. Get your young athlete a sports exam.
   Any student who plays a school sport needs a sports physical, which is more focused than an annual wellness checkup. The sports checkup reviews heart and lung health, including diagnosing any breathing or exertion issues like asthma that could be worsened by playing sports. It also includes a sport-specific examination of a child's muscles and bones.
   If your child is due for an annual exam, you can get the sports physical with the pediatrician at the same time. Jane Meltott, MD, a pediatrician with Kaiser Permanente Washington, recommends this approach. "Sometimes the only time we see a child or teenager is for the sports physical," she says, "so we can use that time to broach other subjects with them, and make sure they are happy and healthy otherwise."

   If your child isn't due for an annual checkup, you can get a sports physical at many walk-in clinics, including CareClinic by Kaiser Permanente at Bartell Drug Stores at several Puget Sound area locations.

3. Check your young student's eyes.
   Good vision is critical to children's success in the classroom. That's why Philip Paros, OD, Kaiser Permanente's Physician in Chief and Director of Audiology and Eye Care, says checking your child's eyes before issues interfere with school is so important.

   "Children may not complain of not being able to see clearly," says Dr. Paros, "which makes exams even more important." Some signs there could be issues, he says, can include:

   • Recurring headaches while reading or using digital devices
   • Sitting too close to a TV screen
   • Squinting when viewing things in the distance, like a whiteboard or a ball in gym class
   • Losing place while reading, or slipping behind in reading ability
   • Poor concentration
"Even children with glasses or contacts already may need updated prescriptions," Dr. Paros says. Vision screening can be done at a child's annual well-child exam.

4. Don't take "fine" for an answer.
Depression, anxiety, and stress are big health risks to teens and younger kids. Dr. Mellott says that in her experience kids will rarely say that they are being bullied or that they are experiencing other stressors. To stay in tune with your child's mood, make sure you engage in real conversations about what's going on at and after school. Instead of asking "How was school?" which practically invites the non-answer "fine," see if you can probe a bit more. Ask about specific classes, what the teachers are like, and if your child has made any new friends this year.

"Kids typically won't volunteer if they are being bullied," Dr. Mellott says, "and the bullies never volunteer." So if you suspect either scenario, talk with the teachers as soon as you can. Your pediatrician can also help discover mental-health issues for your child as well as prescribe constructive next steps for everyone.

5. Make sure backpacks fit well.
As schoolkids get older, they tend to carry heavier books. A load of books with a laptop can weigh as much as 30 pounds. That can spell shoulder, neck, and back strain for young people, and affect their posture.

Make sure your child's backpack fits well, with padding on the shoulder straps that can be loosened and tightened to ensure a snug fit depending on the contents. Make sure the backpack is always worn with both straps over both shoulders, not one slung over one arm, which adds to the pressure on that arm.

Some parents are switching to rolling backpacks, which can definitely ease the load on young shoulders. "But many schools don't allow them," Dr. Mellott says, "because they can be considered a tripping hazard." Check to make sure your child's school allows them.

Paying attention to the big (and little) issues that face your child heading back to school should help everyone in the family have a happier and healthier year.

Tips From a Former Smoker • Ellie’s Biography
Submitted by: Vondell Bender | Hualapai Health, Education & Wellness

Ellie describes herself as 5 feet tall with a 10-foot personality. She enjoys playing the guitar and has always liked to sing. Ellie also is an active member of the LGBT communities. She was diagnosed with asthma in her mid-thirties. Although she never smoked cigarettes, her parents did, and she was a bartender at a bar that allowed smoking. Ellie loved her job. But in 1990, she started having asthma attacks. At first she didn’t know what was happening. “I had trouble breathing. I was wheezing. It was terrifying!”

After several hospital visits and with the help of her doctor, Ellie realized the asthma attacks were triggered by the people smoking at the bar where she worked. She was forced to choose between her health and staying at the job. For Ellie, the choice was clear. She quit her job. Even though she never smoked, she realized the damage to her health was caused by breathing the secondhand smoke from people smoking around her. “I loved what I did. I loved the people where I worked. But every time someone asked, ‘Can I have a change for cigarettes?’ I knew I was going to be breathing in more of that smoke. And when I went home each night, I was afraid that I was going to wake up in the middle of the night not being able to breathe.”

Ellie has vivid memories of her parents smoking cigarettes around her throughout her childhood. “I grew up in a household where both of my parents smoked, and I didn’t like it. I didn’t like the smell of it. I remember going on trips cramped up in the car with the windows closed. It was filled with smoke. I would feel queasy and sick,” she recalls.

Ellie was in her twenties when she started playing the guitar and singing for friends. Even though it’s a hobby, she hesitates to sing in public because just one person smoking near her could trigger an asthma attack. “Worrying that someone’s smoking could trigger an attack limits where I can go and what I can do,” she says.

Today, Ellie lives with her partner and works in a smoke-free environment. She is very comfortable asking people not to smoke around her, whether they are friends, family members, or strangers. Even though Ellie feels so much better being away from secondhand smoke, she still worries that at any moment she might encounter someone who smokes, which could trigger another asthma attack. She is also sad she had to leave a job she loved. Ellie is emphatic in saying, “Everyone deserves to work in a smoke-free workplace.”
Thank You From the Family of Calvin C. Smith

From the family of Calvin Candaux Smith

I want to thank everyone that supported our family after the accident that took our brother, Calvin Candaux Smith.

This includes the first responders that took care of the accident, the Hualapai Tribe’s immediate attention to get things done with the funeral services, flowers, food and the many that attended Calvin’s memorial. A special appreciation goes out to the Hualapai Housing that got things done when we needed to move things out of the house. Thank you Hualapai Planning for getting our flyer out and helping with so many incidentals that my Nephew needed to navigate in the community.

Our family greatly appreciates everyone that helped in so many ways. I feel blessed that our Tribe gives so much to the People of Peach Springs.

I feel the great loss, of losing my brother, Calvin; but the immediate responses from all the good people in Peach Springs could hardly go without saying thank you, and gratitude for caring in our time of need. Many blessings and appreciation to the Hualapai Tribe.

Thank you ~

Live life to the full

The other day I ran into a young girl who I knew but haven’t seen in a long time period we exchanged greetings and then I asked her what she was doing in town and she said, "I’m at that behavioral place, because I want it to do away with myself." I said, "Why?" Which she told me her story and after she finished I said to her, "You know God has a plan for you. You were born for a reason. God knew you before you were born, so he put you here on Earth for a reason. He loves you very much, don’t think it was a good idea to do that period you can take care of yourself and look ahead in your future. Get a job and do for yourself." I went on and on, then she had to go.

Life is a best thing God has given to you, so be grateful for it. When you except the goodness of life, you will stop fighting against it.

When you accept that life is good, all impatience and frustration will be removed and life becomes a satisfying and exciting experience.

Allow your life to be controlled by godly principles and it will become an expression of those plans. You will possess the unity with the Lord and your life will be filled with the fullness of God.

"For with you is a fountain of life, in YOUR LIGHT we see light." ~ Psalms 36:9

"The Peach."

Proudly Announces and Congratulates
July 2019 Volunteer of the Month:
Georgetta Russell

DJ Getta

You probably know Getta for some of her many roles at KWLP. She is the friendly, upbeat voice heard so frequently on "The Peach," host of "The Morning Blend" weekdays; host of Native Star Nation Friday nights and often MCing! DJing for the station at many community events; sometimes even dressed as our Peach Dude mascot! You may not know Getta has been with KWLP since it was an internet only, youth-operated station called EPCHA. Getta has been both staff and volunteer at the station at various times over the last decade. Can you believe that?!

This month Getta has stepped up and helped the station out immensely in innumerable ways while staff have been new or absent and positions vacant. This help has included events, broadcasting, audio production, hosting her shows for her "peeps" and even training new staff. The Peach crew are all rooting for Getta as she pursues her dream of attending the ASU Cronkite School and securing a lifelong career in journalism and broadcasting. Look for her to continue with The Peach and probably come back one day and run KWLP! Getta will be receiving a gift package worth over $100.00 in recognition of being Volunteer of the Month for July, 2019.

If you’d like to join the Peach volunteers call 769-1110.
KWLP Volunteer Coordinator is first lady.
Now you cut that out!

Just Because you can't go running off to see that girl, beagle you met, you don't have to be so obnoxious!

By golly, you'd better start behaving yourself!

And stop making those long-distance phone calls!

That girl, beagle I met at the Daisy hill puppy farm is really something.

I wonder why I liked her so much? I think it's because we teased each other.

We laughed a lot, and we teased each other.

And then there were these soft paws...wow!

I have bad news for you.

That last letter you sent to your girl friend at the Daisy hill puppy farm never reached her. She's not there any more.

She's been sold!

Aaaauggghh!!

What do you do when the girl, beagle you love more than anything is taken from you, and you know you'll never see her again as long as you live?

What do you do?

Back to eating!

What would happen if there were a beautiful and highly intelligent child up in heaven waiting to be born, and his or her parents decided that the two children they already had were enough?

Your ignorance of theology and medicine is appalling!

I still think it's a good question...

If you think about something at three o'clock in the morning and then again at noon the next day, you get different answers.
